A facsimile of Gunther's 1864 "The Reptiles of British India".

Description
Reptiles of British India is one of the main works of German zoologist Albrecht Carl Ludwig Gotthilf Gunther (1830-1914). Gunther began his association with the British Museum, London, in 1857 when he was charged with completing the museum's catalogues of amphibia, reptiles and fish. In 1875 he became director of the zoology department of the Natural History Museum.
